

Disclaimer and terms of use

The use and access of this website is subject to the disclaimer and the terms and conditions set out below. By using or accessing this website, you agree to be bound by these terms and conditions.

- We aim to ensure that the information published on this website is accurate and consistent with current knowledge and practice. However, medical knowledge and practice is constantly evolving and individual cases may require specific advice that cannot be, and is not intended to be, addressed through this website. It is not intended to replace a consultation with an appropriately qualified health professional when this is required. Requirement to see a mental health specialist is made clear under each topic where appropriate. We have endeavoured to provide relevant, well-researched and helpful information, although we cannot guarantee that the information provided will meet your individual or your clients' needs.
- The information and advice on this website should be used in conjunction with the Child Protection guidelines and policies of your own organisation, which you must implement in all circumstances.
- This website contains links to other websites. We are not responsible for the contents or reliability of these websites and do not necessarily endorse the views expressed within them. Listing of a website should not be taken as an endorsement or recommendation unless stated. We cannot guarantee that external links will work and we have no control over their availability.
- The internet is not a secure medium for communication. We cannot guarantee that any information that you submit to us, through our website or by e-mail, will arrive safely or will be secure from interception by third parties.
- We cannot guarantee that files downloaded or accessed from this website are free of computer viruses.
- The material on this website is freely available for copying, however it may not be copied for commercial purposes. Preferably the topic sections should be copied in their entirety, however it is acceptable to copy part of the text if this is more appropriate for your purposes (for example, teaching). In either case, the material must be clearly referenced. You are not permitted to alter or add to the text.
- This website has been tested and should work correctly under normal circumstances. However there are many factors both within and outside of our control which may prevent the website from being available. We do not accept responsibility for any damage or losses that may arise from the inability to access resources on this site.